DHI Masters Scholarship Programme 2022-2023

The DHI has 7 FTE Master's Scholarships remaining for students wanting to study digital health and care in the 2022-2023 academic period, the DHI have partnered with Chief Science Office (CSO) and National Education Scotland (NES) with a specific call to reach Health and Care workers. Scholarships are available for practitioners wishing to undertake a MRes in the field and are available for both part-time and full-time students.

£7,387

Our scholarships are valued at £7,387 per place, in the case that tuition exceeds this amount universities are required to waive any excess fees. For tuition below this, any excess is available to be spent in support of the students' studies

Students are only eligible if they have been accepted onto an MRes programme in Scotland, and should ensure they are able to align their dissertation project with one of our strategic themes:

1. Citizen empowerment and long-term condition management
2. Healthy ageing
3. Digital solutions in supporting preventative and early intervention approaches in health and social care
4. Digital solutions as an enabler in shifting care from institutional settings into home and/or community settings e.g., Hospital at home
5. Digital solutions in supporting Population/Public Health and/or
- Emergency Planning/Prevention, Early Intervention (ref Covid19 or similar epidemic/pandemic threats)
6. Service issues OR service redesign in health and care: demand and capacity management
7. Digital skills and workforce development in health and social care
8. Solution to barriers for scaling Digital health and care solution
